Natural resource governance is central to the
outcomes of
biodiversity
conservation efforts
and to patterns of economic development,
particularly in
resource-dependent
rural communities.
The institutional
arrangements that define natural resource
governance are
outcomes of
political processes,
whereby numerous
groups with often-

divergent interests
negotiate for access to and control over resources. These political processes
determine the
resource
governance reform
efforts, such as widespread attempts to decentralize or devolve greater
tenure over land
and resources to
local communities.
This volume
examines the
political dynamics
of natural resource
governance
processes through a
range of
comparative case
studies across east
and southern Africa. These cases include both local and national settings, and
examine issues
such as land rights,
tourism

development,
wildlife
conservation,
participatory forest

Between Imitation and Innovation

Apr 29 2020 Recent years have seen intense debates among management and academics on the rise of 'lean production' and 'Japanization'. Some authors have stressed the 'universal' impact of new forms of work organization and 'best practice' while others have questioned the limits of convergence, stressed the weight of national contexts or 'societal effects'.

or highlighted the evolutionary effects of unpredictability in the external environment. The international automobile industry has been a focus for much of this debate and this book, written by a team of leading international researchers in the field, uses this industry to examine in detail the actual practice of the transfer and adaptation of productive models and the trajectories of innovation, compromise, and failure that can result. Case studies cover in detail the Japanese transplant experience in North America, and the global experience of hybrid production systems in Europe, Latin America, and

Asia. The book contributes to theoretical discussions about the transfer, adaptation, or convergence of productive models. In particular, the authors argue that direct transplantation or imitation of these models is rarely feasible or even desirable. Systems cannot be transferred without being significantly reshaped. Instead, the book focuses on the process of 'hybridization', the complex interaction of productive models with national and societal effects. Hybridization, it is argued, is inevitable. But this should be seen not simply as a process of compromise and retreat but also as an important dynamic of innovation and learning. This book is from the French-based international research network GERPISA (Groupe d'étude de recherche permanent sur l'industrie et les salaires de l'automobile). See related titles below.
